COMING—Elmer in "Mary Jane's Pa."

Devil Fish of Great Size.
A large fish weighing up to 200 pounds are sometimes caught in Japan. These fish are amphibious; they are often seen wobbling on their tentacles like giant spiders in search of patches of sweet potatoes. The natives kill them with clubs. In the winter they are caught in jars lowered to the bottom, where the octopus enters thinking them a good retreat from which to catch its food.

BURLESQUE CONTEST DRAWS BIG CROWD

Chicago "Cubs" Show How the National Pastime Is Not Played—Fans Protest.

Those Janesville fans who formed the "Cubs" team of the 1390 spectators present at the alleged ball game between the "Cubs" and the "All Stars" at Yost's park yesterday, were not harboring the kindest feelings toward those who played the leading roles in what, to speak conservatively, was a cheap burlesque on the great American game.

Although it cost fifty cents to get into the grounds, "four life" more to enter the grandstand and half a dollar additional to get a good seat, the local "come on" are not registering their kick on the monetary end of the deal. They would willingly pay the price to see the "Cubs" play real ball, but that is just what they did not see. The "All Stars" played hard, but the "Cubs" were a "Cub" performance, the better. They did not try to hit the ball, or run bases or field. No one seemed to want to pitch and after Overall had grown weary, Howard was taken from first base and twirled several times under hand. This went on until the sixth when it was a little too raw even for the "Cubs" fans, and Brown took up the task in response to a vociferous and universal appeal. However, the score, 10 to 1, in favor of "All Stars," tells the tale. "All Stars" victory is laid to Warhop's pitching and "Cubs" superb defense.

A number from this city who expected to see a game, left before the third inning. One fan, who has never been known to leave until the last ball had been pitched, left in the second and about the remainder of the afternoon in an interurban car. What over may have been the cause of the poor showing, one thing is certain and that is, the list of "Cub" supporters in this section of the woods, has dropped off considerably.

BRODHEAD COUPLE WEDDED YESTERDAY

Carl Mayeux and Lena Ten Eyck Married in M. E. Parsonage—Will Live in Kansas.

[Special to the Gazette.]
Brodhead, Oct. 21.—At the M. E. church parsonage Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock occurred the marriage of Carl Mayeux and Lena Ten Eyck, Rev. G. N. Foster officiating. The happy young couple left on the four o'clock train for Manhattan, Kansas, where they expect to make their future home.

Mrs. J. W. Brunker is in Evansville for a few days' visit with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Smith and son, Chester, left on Wednesday morning for Shokopee, Minn., where they will spend the winter.

Miss Beatrice Hoy returned to her home at Pierce, South Dakota, Wednesday, after a visit of some weeks with Mesdames M. W. Bradley and J. Donmyer.

Clark Williams was a Janesville visitor on Wednesday. Mrs. M. Krippl, who has been the guest of Mrs. D. Hastings in Beloit, returned home on Wednesday. Mrs. Hastings accompanied her. Gene Ward went to Janesville Wednesday afternoon. Martin Paulson spent Wednesday in Beloit.

WESTERN TRIP FOR JANESVILLE GIRLS

The Misses Palmer Spent Sometime in the West—Comment on Their Trip.

Carrie and Margaret Palmer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Palmer of the third ward, are on their way home from a three months' tour of the west, including Seattle and the coast cities. On their way they spent a few days at Denver, and visited the King Solomon mine at Frisco, a mining city 100 miles west of Denver. A member of the party in writing to a western paper says of Miss Carrie Palmer: "At Frisco we met a young lady from Wisconsin, totally blind since she was three years old, 'seeing the mountains.' Someone explains it all to her, and she really sees the beauty and grandeur of it all better than some with eyes. She is a graduate of the school for the blind at Janesville, is a talented musician, an adept at fancy work, such as crocheting, fancy sweaters, shawls, lace, and makes most of her own clothes, being the sewing machine, etc. She is now quite a poet and composes her poems herself on the typewriter."

MAIL CARRIERS SURPRISED CHARLES SMITH LAST NIGHT

Members of Rural Free Delivery Force Met to Celebrate Oldest Carrier's Birthday.

Eight rural free delivery mail carriers of Janesville were very pleasantly entertained last night at the home of Charles H. Smith, 218 Park street. The occasion of the gathering was Mr. Smith's sixty-eighth birthday and his guests presented him with a substantial token of their esteem. During the evening, a three-course luncheon was served. Mr. Smith is the longest rural mail carrier in the city and is starting on his eleventh year of continuous service. For five and a half years he delivered mail on what was known as the "Star" route, but during the past four and a half years has been a rural carrier.

FOOTVILLE.
Footville, Wis., Oct. 21.—On Wednesday, October 27, the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church will hold their annual bazaar and New England supper in the Masonic Hall at Footville. There is a nice line of useful articles to be displayed, including many from California. The supper will be served from 5:30 until all are served.

MISS MARY FIFIELD DIED AT MIDNIGHT

Was Only Surviving Daughter of the Late Leavitt Fifield—Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon.

Miss Mary Fifield, only surviving daughter of the late Leavitt Fifield, died at midnight last evening. She had been confined to her bed the greater part of the time since the death of her sister, Miss Grace Fifield, a year ago last August, and her condition had been critical since an attack of the grippe overtook her three weeks ago. During the few days preceding her death she was unconscious and the end came without a struggle.

The home for a long period was on South Main street, but in recent times she had lived in the First ward, back of the Presbyterian church, up to two months ago when she sold the property. Mrs. Sarah Bull is an aunt and a large number of cousins reside in Janesville. Her father, Leavitt Fifield, was at one time principal owner of the Janesville Machine Co. plant. He sold out and moved to Chicago, where the plant he established in the metropolis was burned in 1871. He came back to Janesville and started a lumber yard. His life journey ended a quarter of a century ago.

Miss Fifield was held in high regard by all who knew her. The funeral will be held from the home of Miss Katherine Fifield, 408 North Jackson street, at two o'clock Friday afternoon, the Rev. J. W. Laughlin officiating.

Mrs. Katherine McCarrill.
This morning at nine o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Katherine McCarrill was held from St. Patrick's church. Rev. Deane E. Kelly conducted the services. There were many of the friends and relatives of the deceased present at the obsequies and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. The pallbearers were Nicholas and Thomas Reilly, Michael Hayes and Will Barrett. The remains were taken to Exeter for burial in Forest cemetery.

George H. Proper.
The funeral of George H. Proper will be held Friday at 12 from the home of his sister, Mrs. William C. Ward, in Rhodora, Archdiocese of Cincinnati. The remains will be brought to Janesville for interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

O. F. Bowles.
Mrs. C. D. Bowles received a pleasant surprise this morning in learning the death of O. F. Bowles of Dell Rapids, S. D., this morning. Mr. Bowles was a brother of the late C. D. Bowles and for many years was a prominent Rock County farmer. He was sixty-three years of age.

William O'Neill, aged thirty-four, residing at 716 Pleasant street, passed away this morning. Mr. O'Neill had for several years been employed by Hayes Bros. and Peters in all their contracting work and, recently, returned from Bellefonte, S. D., where the firm is building a large irrigation dam, suffering from an abscess on his neck. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, Mrs. Margaret O'Neill, and one brother and three sisters. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Mrs. Jane B. Kingsley.
Funeral services for Mrs. Jane B. Kingsley were conducted this morning at 10:30 from Oak Hill Chapel by Rev. J. C. Hazen. The pallbearers were F. A. Howell, Herbert Kenyon, Fred Kenyon, and Charles Howell. Interment was in Oak Hill cemetery.

HAVE REORGANIZED BLANDON STOCK CO.

Leave for Their Season's Work on Saturday, Opening at Fond du Lac.

During the past week the Blandon Stock Company, which plays here last week, has been undergoing a reorganization. The company had thirty-two persons on the payroll, but after reorganization it now carries but seventeen. One of the comedians of the company, Cecil Summers, met with a painful accident which might have resulted fatally during the rehearsal "stunt" that of filling his mouth with gasoline and holding a lighted match several feet away and setting fire to the spray. The flames, however, flared back and his face was badly scorched, so that he has been under a physician's care all the week. The company leaves on Saturday for Fond du Lac.

Hospitals Get $1,800,000.
New York, Oct. 21.—The Brooklyn and Manhattan hospitals of this city will be enriched $900,000 each by the will of Mitchell Valentine, a money-lender of Westchester, who died at the age of 85 years and left an estate of $2,000,000. Aside from a few bequests to relatives and institutions the fortune is to be divided between the two hospitals.

Telephone Merger for Iowa.
Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 21.—Judge McHenry denied an injunction asked by minority stockholders in the Mutual Telephone Company, stopping the Iowa Telephone Company, a bill concerning, from absorbing the mutual or independent line. The courts hold that such a merger is against public policy.

Veteran Newspaper Man Dead.
Chicago, Oct. 21.—John Halloran, in the service of the Inter Ocean for more than forty years and for several years its night editor, is dead after a brief illness. At the time of his death, at the age of about seventy years, he was the senior in service of all the employees of the Inter Ocean.

Marriage Licenses: Applications for marriage licenses were filed today by William C. O'Grady and Katherine Achaunier, Roy Fred Wright and Agnes Mawhinney, all of Beloit.

CUBS ENTERTAINED AT THEATRE PARTY

Chicago Baseball Nine Guests of Manager of Beloit Opera House and of C. K. at Supper.

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 21.—The Chicago "Cubs" baseball team was the guest of Manager Wilson at the opera house last evening and were later entertained by the Beloit club members. The men of the nine made many friends here and gave the Beloit players due credit for having won the game under conditions unusually favorable to the local team.

Department Commander of the G. A. R., W. H. Grinnell, has returned home after an absence of three months on a western trip. He was taken quite seriously ill while visiting his sister in Colorado.

Rev. Theodore Broecker, of Dale, Wis., has accepted the call of the St. John's German Lutheran congregation and will be here in a few days to take up his work.

PRETTY WEDDING WAS HELD LAST EVENING

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wachlin, Wednesday evening at six o'clock, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Matilda Wachlin, to Robert L. Johnson of Beloit, Iowa. Rev. W. P. Christy of St. Patrick's English Lutheran church officiated at the ceremony. Immediately following a bounteous supper was served in the dining room which was decorated with palms and roses. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white embroidered satin and wore a veil and bridal wreath of myrtle and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

The bride is a young lady well known and well liked. The groom is an enterprising young man employed as accountant in the office of the Beloit-St. Paul Steel company. They will leave for Milwaukee and intend to travel in the east, returning to the home of the bride late next week. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will then depart for their future home in Beloit.

The Uplift.
Some of the most effective uplift movements in history began with raising the devil, and who, after all, needs raising more?—Puck.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner E. Griffiths of Duluth, Minn., announce the arrival of a son, October 5. Mrs. Griffiths was formerly Miss Myrtle Peters of this city.

TAFT HAS EXCITING DAY WITH COWBOYS

Rides Baily Cayuse—Has Time of Life on Brother's Ranch.

Gregory, Tex., Oct. 21.—President Taft had "the time of his life" on his brother's ranch here. Attired in a suit of khaki, top-boots and a slouch Panama hat, he rode a cayuse which at times was a bit "nervy," to a roundup of some 1,200 head of cattle, saw two wild steers cut out of the "hunch" and rushed, and witnessed the dipping of 50 steers into a disinfecting tank, through which they had to swim 50 feet.

The cayuse balked only once during the day, and that was when the president was about to get into the big saddle made specially for him and mounted with gold.

The president began his day with a game of golf against Charles P. Taft. While these two were on the links Secretary of War Dickinson and Capt. Archibald W. Hunt, the president's aid, were at the fresh water tanks, ten miles away, shooting ducks.

This afternoon President Taft will visit the town of Taft, named for him, and where at the last election he received the unanimous vote of every man over 21 years old.

VIRGINIA BISHOP CONSECRATED

Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd Is Made Coadjutor at Alexandria.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 21.—In historic Christ Episcopal church here, where George Washington attended religious services during the years he lived at Mount Vernon, and in the presence of a distinguished assemblage of clergy and laity such as this old town seldom has seen, the solemn ceremony of the consecration of a bishop occurred when Rev. Dr. Arthur S. Lloyd was made coadjutor of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Virginia.

Rev. Dr. Daniel and Sylvester Tuttle, bishop of Missouri and presiding bishop of the United States, was principal consecrator.

Rev. W. William C. Donno, bishop of Albany, N. Y., preached the consecration sermon.

Dies While Playing Cards.

Washington, Oct. 21.—While sitting in a game of pinocle with his father-in-law, Jacob Fisch, at the home of the latter, and with the remark that he was feeling the scarcely off his lips, Benjamin F. Barnes, postmaster of this city, and who served first as executive clerk under President McKinley and later as assistant secretary to President Roosevelt, dropped dead here of heart failure.

Charged with Selling Wife.
Chicago, Oct. 21.—William R. Ellis, 31 years old, is a prisoner at the Desplaines street station accused by his young wife of having placed her in a disorderly house last April. The husband's arrest followed a shocking story related by the wife when she was arraigned before Municipal Judge Newcomer.

Modern advertising is generally considered to be a creative factor in the development of new trade but volumes could be written on its efficiency in the elimination of waste in reorganizing an old business.

Billion.
In America, as in France, "billion" means a thousand millions. In Great Britain it means a million millions. The word was originally invented in France in the sixteenth century to denote the second power of a million, trillion and quadrillion being formed at the same time to denote the third and fourth powers of a million. In the seventeenth century the arithmeticians changed the use of the words, and "billion" came to mean a thousand millions, trillion a million millions, and so forth. England, not being a revolutionary country, clung to the meaning of the word that had the oldest pedigree. America, being a revolutionary country, followed France.

His Prospects.
"I fear I am not worthy of you." "Never mind about that," responded the young lady with the square jaw. "Between mother and myself I imagine we can effect the necessary improvements."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Advertising Is Business Insurance.
Once upon a time—and this is no fairy tale—a seeker after more business refused to pick up business that was possible to get by advertising. A traveler came along who saw the possibilities and said: "Let here is my opportunity," and in a short time he annexed the business. You may not see any moral in this, but the cold fact remains: The advertiser got the business.

THEATRE

"Little Johnny Jones" is presented at the Myers theatre, this evening, the theatre-going public of this city will have an opportunity of witnessing what is unquestionably the biggest musical hit and the greatest comedy success that has been presented for several seasons past. "Little Johnny Jones" is in every sense of the word a metropolitan attraction, with a distinguished cast and a chorus of forty people. In all numbering over seventy-five persons, quite the very largest organization on tour this season. The same production in every respect will be seen here, which delighted New York all last season and which secured a run of over three months in Chicago. In the latter city Mr. McArdle, the dramatic critic of the Chicago Chronicle, thought so well of "Little Johnny Jones" that he took occasion in his paper to give it a half column "leader," in which he remarked that "A person would have to possess a mean disposition to neglect the genuine American humor which pervades George M. Cohan's musical melodrama. In the character of 'The Unknown,' the author has produced a central figure of a pretentious comedy rank among the most popular characters of the American stage." Continuing, Mr. McArdle writes: "In one respect 'Little Johnny Jones' is an anomaly combining as it does the light and diverting features of a musical entertainment with the intensest drama of melodrama, and sustaining a dramatic plot throughout." Mr. McArdle says he does not recall any other entertainment in which singing and dancing are combined with the serious forms of dramatic acting. For "Little Johnny Jones," Mr. Cohan has composed some of his characteristic music, music with a swing to it that is easily remembered and soon becomes popular. "Give My Regards to Broadway" and "Yankee Doodle Boy" are now famous song hits and with the others of the score are to be found on almost every music rack in America. Therefore, in this respect, "Little Johnny Jones" is no stranger to us, and he comes here with such an unquestioned reputation that it goes without saying that standing room will be at a premium, when this musical attraction is presented in this city.

"Girls" is a comedy in three acts, by Clyde Fitch, dealing in a satirical manner with the question of womanly independence.

Three educated girls—Pamela Gordon, Violet Lansdowne and Kate West, secretary, stenographer and artist, respectively—are in New York to make careers without the help of men. They are living in an apartment house, in a combination studio and living-room, all of them out of work, but held together in bonds of fellowship.

Pamela Gordon is the strong-minded girl and is the head of the little band, who, each day take a solemn oath on their crossed bathpins to eschew the pleasures of masculine society.

The girls prepare to retire for the night, and are in their night robes ready to duck a slip of chocolate when their door is broken open and a man rushes into their apartment and locks the door carefully behind him. Of course the girls, being real girls at heart, do just what any other girls would do under the circumstances—they scream and order the intruder to leave at once. He refuses and explains that he is fleeing from an irate husband, who came home suddenly and discovered him in his wife's company.

The intruder is good-looking and Violet Lansdowne, the youngest and the prettiest of the bachelor girls, finds herself casting looks of admiration and thinking of the chap in a manner that is decidedly against the tenets of their organization. Finally, after much entreaty, they prevail upon the gentleman to leave, by means of a shutter, which is thrown from their window across a passageway to the apartment of a splinter lady who is perfectly willing to marry, the first man.

He disappears into the darkened window. The girls recover from their fright and go to bed, after placing "No Wedding Bells for Me," and renewing their oath to the accompaniment of steam pipes.

In the second act we are shown the interior of the law offices of Sprague and Holt, and Pamela and Violet are working in clerical positions. Mr. Sprague, the senior member of the firm, develops a liking for Pamela, and gets a call-down from that strong-minded young woman, who resents what she calls his freshness and forward impudence. Up to this time the junior partner, Mr. Holt, has not appeared, the senior partner explaining that he has been on a vacation. To the surprise of both girls, the door finally opens and the bachelor man, Mr. Holt, appears and takes possession as the junior partner of Sprague and Holt.

The girls finally decide that things have become entirely too personal and broken, because of the more than business-like interest both partners take in their personal affairs. Indignantly they are in the office a male clerk, who has been there for ten years, but whose most bitter complaint is that the partners never pat him on the cheek or make a fuss over him.

"Girls" will be seen at the Myers theatre, Saturday, Oct. 23, matinee and evening.

Grand Opera Stars. In George Crampton, basso, with the Sheehan Opera company, coming to the Myers theatre, Monday, Oct. 25, the Jansville public will have an opportunity of hearing a singer of international fame, a member of the London Royal Opera company and twice summoned to sing before Queen Victoria at Windsor castle. Mr. Crampton began his career as soloist at Saint Margaret's Westminster Cathedral in London. His great vocal ability soon became a matter of comment in London musical circles and before long he accepted the offers of the Royal Opera company and became leading basso with that famous organization.

It was while with the Royal company that Mr. Crampton's fame as a soloist became universal in England and he was summoned to appear in concert at Windsor castle by Queen Victoria. So pleased was the queen with the great range of tone and vocal ability of the artist that he was again summoned to sing at Windsor castle in concert with many of the most famous operatic stars in Europe. As "Devilfish," chief of the gypsies in "Bohemian Girl," Mr. Crampton will be heard by Jansville music lovers. There is added interest in the fact that Michael Balfe, composer of the beautiful opera, was grandfather of Mr. Crampton and it is with pride that Mr. Crampton calls attention to the fact that "Bohemian Girl" is his favorite opera. For this engagement, the management announces popular prices will prevail, 50 cents to $1.50. Mat order sale now upon. Seat sale at the box office begins Friday morning at nine o'clock. Orders by mail for seats filled in order of receipt.

BIG DEALS CONTEMPLATED BY RAILROAD COMPANIES

Milwaukee Yards Will Be Enlarged And $25,000,000 Union Station May Be Built in Chicago.

Speculation is rife concerning the meaning of the trips now being made by high railroad officials. President McCrea's visit to Chicago has been explained by the announcement that the Pennsylvania lines together with other great railroads will build a new $25,000,000 union passenger station near the new North-Western station in a few years. What his visit to Duluth means, is not known, but it is probably for the same purpose for which the directors of the North-Western are going to St. Paul. A special train carrying the officials passed through Jansville this afternoon at 5:30. Another announcement just made this morning was to the effect that the road had just purchased 303 acres of land at Milwaukee for a freight yard, the consideration being $94,250, and expects to use 90 more acres besides constructing over 52 miles of belt line track.

Engineer Crowley took Engineer Manning's place on 300 this morning.

Engineer Starritt and Fireman Grant went south on a stock train this morning at 7:30 with engine 53.

Fireman Dalton is on the motor car run today with Engineer Morton.

It is reported that an engine was overturned into the turn-table pit at Baraboo last night.

Fireman R. J. Smith took engine 421, dead, in a train to Chicago yesterday afternoon.

James Crowley is working as machinist, nights, at the new yards.

Engineer Zimmerman and Fireman Hollander, a Wisconsin Division pool crew, went south on 558 this morning on account of Engineer Spohn and Fireman Cohn being on the road sixteen hours yesterday.

Engineer Guy Cole in laying off for a short time.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Two engines were sent out on switching service last night. In addition to the regular engine, Engineer Kennan and Fireman Lucht had charge of 1048.

Engineers Meyer and Barker, and Fireman McAuliffe and Dooley went out yesterday double-headed on 165 with engine 1255 and 1257. Engineer Barker brought back the 1344 tandem on 106 in place of the 1255.

Fireman Duxstad is on the switch-engine today with Engineer Callahan.

Brakeman John Barry went to Chicago this morning on 162.

Fireman Yeo had Kennan's place on the dog run last night with Engineer Allen.

Engineer Felter and Fireman Shain had a work train out today with engine 1371.

Engineer Wilkinson and Fireman Knelling went out on number 20 this morning in place of Engineer Mackeson and Fireman Bonham.

Engineer Barker and Fireman Dooley took an extra to Madison this morning at 11:15 with engine 1722.

Great Engineering Feat.

How a water supply was furnished Ft. Greble, on the Dutch island, in Narragansett bay, is explained in Popular Mechanics. A submerged pipeline, 4,160 feet long, was laid from the Rhode Island mainland, the average depth of water being 35 feet. As may be imagined this feat was attended with numerous difficulties, all of which were successfully overcome.

New Language for Liberia.

There is in use in some parts of the west coast of Africa a system of writing of native invention which is said to be successfully competing with English writing. It is called the Val language and was invented by Donlu Jurkore, assisted by five of his friends. The characters resemble Egyptian hieroglyphics, but the tongue is said to be harmonious, relatively easy to pronounce and with a grammar that is far from difficult. It is being more and more used in west Africa and it is said may become the dominant form of native speech in Liberia and adjacent countries.

Friday Bargains

J. M. BOSTWICK & SONS.

If you are looking for brilliancy or humor in the advertisements you read you will be sorely disappointed in ours. We believe there is only one excuse for "rushing into print" at all and that is to tell the public FACTS about our store "deings" and about new goods that have arrived—the special pricing and other items that some portion of the public is sure to be interested in. FACTS, just plain, pointed, unvarnished facts, is all that you will find in our advertisements. We never bargain or SPECIAL unless the fact is back of our representation. This is doubly so in the array of FRIDAY BARGAINS marked for tomorrow's selling. They are in every way EXTRAORDINARY—qualities, seasonableness and PRICINGS, besides being new goods this fall. A dollar will do more right now than we know the same amount to do for many a day and for things that are good the whole year round. SUCH VALUES OUGHT TO PACK THE STORE. FOR WHEN WILL YOU FIND SUCH VALUES AS THOSE LISTED BELOW? Friday bargains for Friday only. No telephone orders filled. On sale at 8 o'clock.

EXTRAVAGANT WASTE

Janesville has paid out of its general fund for street building, during the past 10 years, about $200,000, and property-owners have been assessed for the same purpose $200,000 more. What has the city to show for the investment of this half million dollars? One mile of brick pavement and several miles of street that are a burlesque and hardly worthy of the name.

If this money had been invested in brick pavement the city would have today thirty miles of first-class streets and the people would feel that they had something to show for their money.

This extravagant waste of money is one of the strong arguments in favor of city government by commission. The claim is made that taxes will be reduced, but it may be asserted and emphasized that for every dollar invested there will be a dollar's worth of returns.

Ignorance is freely responsible for the worst kind of extravagance, and this is especially true in the expenditure of public money, which, by the way, is the easiest money coined to spend.

Aldermen, who have had the disbursement of the ward funds, may be as honest as the horny-handed sons of toil and as ignorant of expert knowledge in street building as the inmate of an asylum.

The city has had some street commissioners during the past decade who were equally ignorant and glib, and these two factors represent the combination through which the half million dollars have been sifted.

The men who have handled the money have not been enriched and the people who furnished it have the satisfaction of knowing that the most of it might as well have been put in a rat-hole.

The commission plan, wherever tried, has made a record for economy, through the intelligent spending of public money. There are no political debts to pay, or no political friends to reward.

The city of Des Moines, Iowa, is attracting wide attention because of the wonderful results achieved in two years under this new form of government.

With Boston in the midst of a struggle to adopt the Des Moines plan, Buffalo appointing a committee of one hundred to investigate, Pittsburgh, Rochester, Spokane, Salt Lake City, and other cities engaged in campaigns, and faraway Honolulu discussing the "famous Des Moines plan," the extent of the crusade for better municipal government may be judged.

In a recent issue the Atlanta Georgian devotes the better part of a page to letters from Galveston, Houston, and Texas cities that have resorted to commission government, saying:

"Atlanta is thinking seriously and carefully of the most revolutionary change in the history of her city government—the abandonment of her present form for that of the commission plan now in operation in Houston, Galveston, Dallas and Fort Worth, in Des Moines, Washington and other cities."

The demands upon Des Moines for speakers are growing, while those of information are being shipped in the form of letters, newspaper articles and pamphlets.

Janesville can well afford to get in line, and the petitions soon to be circulated should be heartily endorsed.

KILLED WHILE TRESPASSING
The railroads are accused of killing so many people in accidents that many people have the notion that their time is largely occupied in reducing the population. Every death which occurs about a railroad is called an accident, and the road is held responsible. The Technical World relates the following incident, which shows how unjust many of these charges are. Trespassers are not passengers:

"A short time ago a newspaper dispatch related that a citizen of Portland, Ore., being in a blithesome condition at 1 a. m., and therefore afraid to go home in the dark, went out and reclined on a spur track in the yard of one of the railroads. He had just got comfortably asleep on his hard bed, when a switch-engine 'kicked' some box cars on the spur he had chosen as a lodging, and he was killed."

"It is something out of the ordinary for people to choose the tracks or yards of railroads as lodgings. And yet the incident was not so very exceptional. For nothing is more common in this country than for people to trespass on railway property in diverse ways and to be killed while doing so. The other day the president of a railway and a leading merchant were lunching together at a club in Chicago. Various railway matters were being talked about."

"After all," said the merchant, "the worst indictment against railroads of the United States is contained in the annual statistics of accidents. There is hardly anything so dangerous as traveling on an American railway."

"Oh, yes, there is," answered the railway president. "There is something a great deal more dangerous. That is trespassing on a railway's property. If I remember correctly over ten people are killed while trespassing on the property of American railways to one that is killed while riding on the trains."

"The merchant thought this could not be correct. The newspapers, he remarked, constantly were filled with harrowing stories of wrecks in which numerous travelers lost their lives. The railway president replied that in order to enable the merchant to substitute exact information for vague impressions, he would send him a table showing the numbers of persons killed on railways while traveling and while trespassing for five years. The table which he sent was as follows:

Year.	Persons Killed.	Trespassers Killed.
In 1903.....	555	5,000
In 1904.....	547	5,105
In 1905.....	531	4,855
In 1906.....	559	5,381
In 1907.....	610	5,612
Totals 5 yrs.....	2,802	25,953

The next congress will be besieged to make all sorts of extravagant appropriations. Half a billion, for instance, for land waterways, a like amount for irrigation purposes, with a liberal slice for good roads. Congressman Cooper seems to regard these appropriations as a mere bagatelle, and if he represents congressional sentiment, they will doubtless be made. Public money is easy money to spend, but when borrowed it represents debt that somebody must pay.

The visit of Gypsy Smith to the red-light district in Chicago was severely criticized by many city preachers, who claimed that many of the 10,000 people in the parade were contaminated, but results are proving that inmates of the slums have been aroused and many of them are seeking to reform. The gospel of the evangelist is not of the silk-stocking order.

The Chicago Tribune is devoting space to opposing the central bank, but offers nothing better as a substitute. The Tribune is not an enthusiastic supporter of the administration, and its loyalty to the republican party has long been of questionable value.

The Crapo incident is rapidly passing into history and will soon be forgotten. One of the Cincinnati papers fires a parting shot by saying that Chicago has added canned Crapo to its stock of delinquencies. Rather unkind, don't you think?

Gentle Annie talks to hosts (who must crouch up at the door) of the trilling spooks and ghosts from the distant shadowy shore. She ANNIE has lived a dozen times BESANT and she says she'll live again; she has known a score of climes, and a hundred breeds of men. She was living by the Nile when the Pharaohs governed there, and she helped the gay Dells when she harbored Samson's hair. Annie visited Ulysses, sailing in his tented home, and J. Caesar knew the bliss of a call from her, in Rome. She was here when William Tell gave old Gessler's heart a shock, when he shot a walnut shell from his little William's block. In the center of good Queen Ross she remained with belted ears, and they belted her, I guess, as they belted all the girls. She was there in London town, on that day abhorred of man, when the throne came tumbling down, and King Charlie lost his can. She has wandered down the world since the world was given place, like a meteor that's hurled flaming from the starry space, and I wonder why she walks through this silly vale of woe, making fiddling little talks at a half a bone a throw.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

SWOLLEN FORTUNES.

The cross extravagance of gilded New York in all of its sordidness is revealed by the testimony in the Gould divorce case.

For instance—Mrs. Gould admitted having spent $224,000 in a single year upon herself. She told the court she could not possibly buy her gowns for less than $40,000 per year.

Which somewhat glides the fly of extravagance. George Gould testified his father left an estate of $80,000,000; that the income from this estate for each of the Jay Gould heirs was $15,000 a week, $780,000 a year or nearly $5,000,000 yearly for the six children. A sum sufficient to keep the wolf a good way from the door.

Now—While from the showing of wastefulness and stopper pulling dissipation and social dirt, one of the lessons from this divorce suit, which has drawn its slow, cautious length through the courts, is this one:

We need in this country an inheritance and an income tax law.

Under a reasonable inheritance tax law the huge estate of Jay Gould would have yielded to the federal government not less than $10,000,000. In some European states so large a fortune would have been taxed $20,000,000, or 25 per cent.

And the Gould estate is but one of several large American family fortunes.

Also, on the basis of a 5 per cent income tax, a reasonably low levy, the government would receive from the $3,000,000 incomes an annual tax return of $250,000.

Would such taxes work a hardship? Evidently no. Mr. Gould's testimony is that, despite the large sum spent on the "Gould castle" and an ultra extravagant wife, he was unable to spend all his income. He says he saved from this income since his father's death the tidy sum of $10,000,000.

Castellane spent Anna's share or as much as he could get his hands on, and Helen gives away much of hers in charity.

A reasonable tax would be only a drop in the bucket to these people. Mrs. Gould freely told the court that her suit of Hotel Belmont rooms cost $300 a week, her automobiles $500 a month and her servants $10,000. "The least a lady can get through on."

Moral—There is one way to stop the growth of "swollen fortunes," to put a brake on prodigality and to equalize the burdens of taxation, and that way is to—

Tax large inheritances and large incomes.

The Martyr of Socialism Whose Death May Bring About the Downfall of King Alfonso of Spain.
Dr. Francisco Ferrer.

Barcelona—Tragic as was the end of Dr. Ferrer when he was shot by the guards for having incited revolt in Spain, the result may be even more tragic for the government and especially for the king. The king was appealed to personally and refused his aid.

Dr. Ferrer had made himself a leader among the Socialists and his death has led to a revolt far more serious than his teachings in life could possibly have done.

ARE TO PROBE THE PEARY DATA

COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS NAMED FOR WORK BY GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY.

EXPLORER SUBMITS PAPERS

Examination of Records Will Be Taken Up at Once—University of Copenhagen Refuses to Waive on Cook's Data.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The records of Commander Robert E. Peary, together with his observations which are to show that he reached the north pole April 6, 1909, have been submitted to the National Geographic society, and been referred to a committee of experts for examination. The only question which the society will decide is whether Peary reached the pole on the date claimed.

Will Meet in a Few Days.

Experts designated by the society will hold their first meeting within a few days and begin their investigation of the Peary data. They will examine the notebooks and original observations and will see all papers brought back from the frigid north. The wide scope of the investigation makes it probable that the subcommittee will not report its findings for several months, but when ready the report will be submitted to a meeting of the board of managers of the society called for that purpose.

Prof. Willis L. Moore, president of the National Geographic society, said after the board meeting that the society believed Peary's claim that he reached the pole should be judged without further delay.

Cannot Wait for Cook Data.

"This society is ready to make a similar examination of Dr. Cook's original observations and field notes," Prof. Moore said, "but as he promised to send them to the University of Copenhagen and the society, probably will not have an opportunity of seeing them for several months, it did not seem fair to defer action on Peary's observations until Cook's papers were received."

"The action of the society was taken in accordance with the by-laws, which provide: 'The committee on research shall be charged with consideration of all matters of scientific and technical geography, including exploration, which may be brought before the society, or which may originate in the committee, and shall report thereon to the board of managers, with recommendations for action.'"

Copenhagen Refuses to Waive. Copenhagen, Oct. 21.—The University of Copenhagen has declined to forego its privilege of the first examination of the north pole records of Dr. Cook. The authorities of the university cabled to the National Geographic society at Washington as follows:

"Sorry, University not able to comply with your request."

Dr. Cook had promised to submit his records first to the faculty of the University of Copenhagen, but on October 15 the university was requested to waive its claim of priority in favor of the National Geographic society, which sought an early determination of the controversy which has arisen as the result of Commander Peary's charge that Dr. Cook did not discover the north pole.

HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT PROBABLE

Believed Jeffries-Johnson Match Will Be Arranged Within a Week.

New York, Oct. 21.—Unless present indications go wrong, the proposed match between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson for the heavy-weight championship of the world may be arranged in this city next week.

George Little, manager of Johnson, has left San Francisco for New York and before boarding the train he wired that he was coming here for the purpose of meeting Jeffries and completing all arrangements for the big fight.

As Jeffries declared before he sailed from England that the first thing he would do on his arrival here would be to clinch the match with Johnson, the prospects are that Jeffries will lose no time in hunting up Little and agreeing on terms for the fight. Jeffries will arrive in New York to-night or Friday morning.

Charged with Ballot Stuffing.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 21.—Charges preferred by Morris G. Ross of Chicago, that one of the delegates was guilty of stuffing the ballot box in the election of grand officer guard, caused an uproar in the session of the Illinois grand lodge, Knights of Pythias. Resolutions calling for drastic dealing with the guilty man was asked for, but it was decided to declare the ballot void. Ross declined to tell the name of the man he accused, but admitted that he is a prominent man from the southern part of the state. Thomas Williamson of Edwardsville was elected as grand officer guard. In the selection of the remaining officers the unwritten rules of succession and succession were followed.

Manila Y. M. C. A. Dedicated.

Manila, Oct. 21.—The handsome new building of the Young Men's Christian association, erected at an expense of $125,000 was opened with an address by former Vice-President Fairbanks. Congratulatory cable messages were received from President Taft and J. R. Aldrich, foreign secretary of the International committee of the Young Men's Christian association, and from kindred organizations throughout the orient.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. IN. ANNUAL CONVENTION

Five Hundred Delegates and Throng of Others Hear President Lillian Stevens' Address.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 21.—Three thousand persons, the majority of whom were women, were in attendance when the annual convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance union was called to order in the big auditorium of Convention hall. Of this number 500 or more were members of the delegations from the several states.

The feature of the first session was of course the annual address of National President Lillian M. N. Stevens of Portland, Me. An unusual Mrs. Stevens' address was marked by a comprehensive grasp of the advance movements that are stirring the nation, and by an intelligent treatment of the sociological questions of this country and Europe with which her long work as a philanthropist and her wide travel have made her familiar. Her words, which were extremely optimistic, were listened to with great interest.

To-night the governor, the mayor and the clergy of Omaha will formally welcome the delegates to the city. Tomorrow evening will be "World's night," and the chief speaker will be Mrs. Ellen M. Stone, who was the captive of the Macedonian brigands. The annual sermon is to be delivered Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Mary Harris ARMOUR, president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., and Monday evening the convention will be addressed by ex-Gov. Glenn of North Carolina. "Demonstration night," which falls on October 23, will acquaint the visiting public with the work of the forty odd departments of the organization.

All the public meetings will be held in convention hall and executive sessions will be held in the Hotel Home, the headquarters of the national officers.

INVESTIGATE CONTRACT LABOR

Government Will Act if Evidence of Peonage is Adduced.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Inquiry into local conditions in regard to the importation of foreign labor was conducted by a special federal commission in the offices of United States District Attorney Edward Sims. The commission members are Congressman John L. Burnett of Alabama, Charles P. Neill, labor commissioner, and John C. Elder, special agent.

Many witnesses were summoned from the contract labor offices at Argo, Ill., and from other nearby cities. Considerable information was received by the committee, all of which will be reported to congress at its next session.

One of the principal concerns under investigation was the Corn Products Company at Argo, Ill. This matter was up before the federal grand jury in Chicago a year ago, but it is said that evidence was not brought out to warrant prosecution at that time.

An assistant district attorney was present when the testimony was being taken, and it is said that if any evidence is presented of peonage there that action will be taken by the federal government.

You who care to wear the kind of clothes that are worn by men of refinement in the most exclusive circles realize that our garments are supplying a long-felt want.

Nine-tenths of all men prefer to have their clothes made to please their personal tastes—but most of these men are having their tastes perverted to follow the wishes of some ready-to-wear, "maybe fit" manufacturer.

You have a right to rebel against the idea of wearing a haphazard fit in a suit that any one of ten thousand other men might wear.

You believe in style tempered to suit your individual preferences.

You believe in fit, moulded and modeled on your own body lines.

We are pleased to guarantee satisfaction in the particular points you most desire. We can satisfy your most exacting demands.

Our Dress Suits are faultless.

TREATY EXPIRES NOVEMBER 1

Treasury Department Discovers Law Which Empowers President to Exclude All Imports from Any Country Discriminating Against U. S.

Washington, Oct. 21.—If the French government attempts to discriminate against our products on November 1, when the present Franco-American treaty expires, all importations from France to this country will be denied entry at any American port by January 1, next.

Threats have been coming from Paris to the effect that as soon as the treaty expires France will apply her maximum tariff rate against the United States. These threats have been reported by Consul General Mason at Paris.

France had made a strenuous effort to have the present treaty extended, but this could not be done under the provisions of the Payne bill, which sets March 1, 1910, as the nearest date that the maximum-minimum feature can be applied.

France is Hostile. When they learned that the treaty could not be extended officials of the French government and French newspapers at once began to assume an hostile attitude toward the United States. These facts have been carefully noted by the Washington government as presaging a tariff war of large proportions and consequent estrangement of the sentimental ties between the two republics.

While France undoubtedly will apply her maximum rate against the United States on November 1, there has been some doubt as to how this government would retaliate. It has just been discovered, however, by the treasury department that a section of the act of August, 1890, gives the president absolute authority to exclude any or all importations from any country that discriminates against the United States.

This law will be used as a weapon against France.

SAN FRANCISCO TO HAVE GREATEST WEEK OF CELEBRATION IN ITS HISTORY.

Finishing the float to represent the driving of the last spike in the Union Pacific Railroad. Miss Virginia Bogue, Queen of Portola Week, and Don Nicholas Covarrubias, who represents Gaspar de Portola.

San Francisco—Portola week will mark an epoch in the golden gate city. Its object is to celebrate the rebuilding of the city after the earthquake and its educational feature deals with the development of the west.

Every great movement will be pictured in the pageant. It will bear to the west what the Hudson-Fulton celebration so recently celebrated, did to the east.

It was decided that the discovery of San Francisco should be the patron. This was Gaspar de Portola, a Spanish captain of dragoons, who in the reign of Charles III, was sent on an expedition which resulted in the finding of San Francisco bay, and later the beginning of a Spanish mission under Father Junipero Serra, the head of the Franciscans, in the colony.

American Sportswomen.
We have heard sometimes that American men are so keen to win the games they play that some of them are rather unsporting, not only in the spirit but in the letter. If this is so, then their womenkind must be, and indeed say they are, a superior creation, as no one makes a more delightful opponent than an American lady. I remember when one of them was being consoled with an suffering defeat from one of the leading Welsh players she said with a cheerful smile: "I guess she played better golf than I did—so I can't grudge." Could anything have shown a more sporting spirit than that?—Lady's Pictorial.

Extravagance.
"It takes a maid to be extravagant," said the woman of slender means. "My girl just exhibited to me with much pride something she had bought to send a girl friend for her birthday. It was a sublimated card, with a dove life size, made of paper that fluffed out when you pulled a string, all gay colors and cut out effects something like the old-fashioned valentines. She paid 50 cents for the thing and it probably will get smashed in the mails. Just think of the handkerchiefs, gloves, stockings, hat pins, collars and all manner of pretty useful things you can get for 50 cents. But the other girl probably will be delighted, so why should I worry?"

Pranks of Oklahoma Windstorm.
The tornado that struck in the country near Chickasha a week or so ago performed some peculiar pranks at the farm of Charles Steinmetz, who found a number of eggs scattered over the ground near where the barn had stood, not one of which was as much as cracked, although the barn in which they had been laid was reduced to kindling wood.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

It is not a sad thing—at least it ought not to be—to die.

The only really sad thing about the end of life is to stop living before you die.

Far too many people seem to think that when they get to be seventy and seventy-five and eighty years old they must come to a standstill. They seem to have the idea that because their time is more or less limited they must not take up any new or interesting thing.

Suppose you were waiting for a friend to come and take you on a drive and you didn't know just what time he was to come. Would you hesitate to take up any work just because you didn't know whether you would have time to finish it or not?

Wouldn't you probably begin a book or start a letter while you waited and get just as far as you could?

I've seen old folks who sat passive waiting for the summons to come that should call them into the other room, and became mighty fretful and disagreeable while they waited.

And then again, I've seen old folk who were so busy living natural lives they didn't realize they were waiting.

If you will, you can fill your life just as full going down the hill as you did going up. Make up your mind to go on living, to go on seeing and doing new things, to go on studying and playing and working just as hard as you have the power to do, while you go on breathing.

If there are things that you've wanted to do, but haven't had time to do before, do them now.

That's my advice to the people who've "climbed the hill" and are standing looking down the farther slope.

Of course, I haven't ever been on that slope of the hill, I'll have to admit that, so I don't speak from my own experience.

But I've known folks who went down the hill both ways and I speak from their experience.

For instance, one of the happiest old people I ever knew was a woman who began to take music lessons after she was 75. She had loved music all her life, but had never been able to play a note. When she was about 75 she found herself in possession of money and leisure that she had never had before and promptly took up the study of the piano. Before she died she was pronounced, by those who knew, an unusually good player.

Julia Ward Howe's daughter told me recently that her mother's daily routine included besides an hour or two at the piano and much reading in English, also the mastery of some Greek classic she had not previously read and some time at literary work. And Julia Ward Howe is 90.

Another old lady whom I knew inherited some money when she was 77 and, instead of getting ready to pass it along to her grandchildren, went abroad and took a wonderful trip through all the Biblical countries in which she had always had a passionate interest.

It's never too late to do something you've never done before; it's never too late to do something you've always wanted to do; it's never too late to crowd some more living and enjoying and doing into life while you can still breathe.

Ruth Cameron

HINTS FOR THE HOME

The happiest homes are those where there are no "company manners." Those that are good enough for every day family use are good for the chance company. If children were made to feel that this is true by observing the manners of their elders there would be fewer blushing mothers and embarrassed fathers when the guest, by her presence, calls attention to the short comings that have not been noticed because of custom.

Fragrant embroideries are the latest fad for the home. Women of wealth have long been buying the wonderful tapestries of France, while their humbler sisters have looked on in envy but fashion has set her seal on the work that can be done by any of the fingers skilled in embroidery.

The merchants are getting it up and soon we will see half finished bits of tapestry and frames and crowns and flowers in the shops for the industrious women to buy. There are wonderful old patterns and large and ambitious pieces of canvas but the humbler worker need not despair. There are simple chair covers and book covers cushion tops and screens that she can afford. The frames are a dainty adjunct to any picture she may have in mind in her boudoir or parlor. A cloth to throw over the work to keep it from dust is necessary and may be a charming note of color when the frame itself is not in use. The stitch is not difficult but care must be given to select colors and pattern in harmony or the result will be a travesty on art.

The best advertising never argues, it declares. To Marquise is to weary; to argue is to arouse combativeness.

Flannel Blouse.
Shown above is a pretty model for a flannel blouse, neatly tailored and altogether fetching. This shirt is laid in tucks, giving the effect of three box plaits in front and one in the center of the back. Over the shoulders is applied a round yoke, terminating at either side of the center box plait in the front. A turnover embroidered collar finishes the neck and under this is a little tucked chemise of mousseline. The sleeves are small, with slight extra fullness at the meeting of sleeve and cuff.

Veteran Retains His Youth.
Deneon Stillman has just celebrated his fortieth year of service on the New York Sun staff, but still sits up with the youngest cub after the paper has gone to press and talks about the wonderful days of old.

Postal Clerks Travel Far.
The value of transportation issued to railway postal clerks at two cents a mile would be $12,600,000, according to the last report of the postmaster-general, which states that these men traveled 629,758,443 miles last year.

Post Toasties

PHIL ALLEN WAS MODEL FOR ALL

gated by thievery and forgery, had been settled and must go down. Goodhart closed the bank, reported to the banking department at Washington that the shortage was $210,000 at least and might amount to as high as $400,000, depending upon the results of verification of accounts. Immediately upon the closing of the bank on Oct. 12, John W. Schofield was appointed as receiver by the federal comptroller of the currency and has since been engaged in tracing out transactions to see whether deposits were good or worthless, genuine or forged. He has gained the reputation of being an expert in the work of bank receiverships, having been so engaged in the First National bank of Brooklyn, the First National bank of Syracuse, N. Y., the First National bank of Ashbury Park, N. Y., and the First National bank at Manassas, N. J. Assisting him is Miss Lulu Johnson of Ashbury Park, N. Y. They are sifting the wheat of genuine collateral from the chaff of forged notes, worthless checks and uncollectible assets. Pending the completion of their work the amount of the default cannot be known, other than it has now passed the mark of $350,000 and may go to half a million.

When the struggle for saving the bank was in progress, Phil Allen was in the thick of the fight. He then confessed to making some mining and industrial investments which apparently could not then be realized on, but he never broke down from the attitude of integrity which he maintained with reference to the notes and mortgages listed in the bank's assets. However, the exposure of a number of irregularities came, such that made the closing of the bank a practical certainty. Allen broke down and took to his bed. At his home it was announced that he was critically sick with Bright's disease, from which he had suffered for years. He closed his eyes in the night, surrounded himself, that he was doomed to die within a day or two, that he had attempted to commit suicide by taking poison the effect of which had been to so make death a consummation certain within the coming day.

Nevertheless, when on Oct. 15, three days after the closing of the bank, United States Marshal Rock Flint went to the Allen home to serve a warrant charging Allen with the default of $168,000, the officer found the confessed wrecker of the bank in bed but apparently in a fair state of health. The marshal proposed that the prisoner be immediately taken before a court commissioner for arraignment, but Allen was provided with a certificate in which three physicians joined, declaring that mortal hazard lay in the immediate removal of the patient. It was not until five days later, after the alleged forgeries and the destruction of the fortunes of widows and orphans had been disclosed and the community was developing a most threatening atmosphere, and after a violent attack had been made at the wedding reception of the daughter of Bank President Spangler, that Allen declared his willingness to undertake the trip to Madison. He pleaded against the long railroad trip, and it was arranged that the overland journey should be made in a touring car. The railroad trip from Mineral Point to Madison is of such a circuitous route as to require 110 miles of travel, while the automobile passage is favored with good roads and only 40 miles in length.

While it was denied that the bringing of Allen in an automobile was decided upon as a means of avoiding the mob in Mineral Point, it is true that by this means of conveyance Allen was spared the possibility of assault at the hands of his victims. Not until he was an hour on the road toward Dodgeville, did it become known that he had departed in the touring car, and even then the announcement was to the effect that a train would be taken at Dodgeville, but the car kept the road and would have reached Madison ere dusk the same afternoon had not a tire exploded causing a delay of nearly an hour. Allen was accompanied in the car by his wife, who is attacking faithfully by him in his disgrace. Harry Tucker, a nephew, Deputy Marshal John Kelly and a chauffeur made up the party. Arriving in Madison after darkness had fallen, the prisoner was taken before United States Court Commissioner Chauncey E. Blake, a dapper young lawyer, recently admitted to the bar. The specimen of a tottering gray old man standing as an accused criminal before the youthful jurist was most unusual and had about it an air almost uncanny. The warrant was read, the old man bowed his head and seemed to quiver, then raised his eyes and articulated: "I made a confession as to certain facts, and I stand by my confession. But I do not know about the law in such cases as this and I would like to be permitted to see a lawyer before answering to that charge."

The commissioner ordered a formal plea of not guilty, fixed the bail at $50,000 and remanded the prisoner to the custody of the deputy. That night was passed with Mrs. Allen at a leading hotel, but at ten o'clock the following morning Allen was committed to jail, pending the furnishing of $50,000 bonds, which he said he expected to have within a few days. In the meantime he is still under his original plea of not guilty, having seen an attorney, a young man formerly in practice near Mineral Point, Wisconsin, whose parents were friends to the banker. Before leaving the scene of his activities, Allen declared that he was willing to plead guilty immediately and accept punishment, but his transference to Madison, away from the immediate locus of his wrong doing, he seems to have taken courage and evidence no intention of accepting himself behind prison bars at Leavenworth for a term of years. The last declaration of Allen before going to jail was indicative of his purpose to make a fight for freedom rather than quietly to submit to imprisonment.

"There has not been wrecking of estates, nor any forgeries," he declared. "At least no estate within my responsibility has been plundered or disturbed, nor have I forged signtures to notes or other paper. I confessed that some of my investments were slow in materializing profits, and the money invested could not immediately be gotten out, but I insist that the securities I turned over amount to and are worth, if handled properly, not less than $250,000. I made money on every deal I finished. If others now take charge and fail to realize that is not my fault. I am charged with the embezzlement of $168,000, but that figure is far too high, even as representing my technical irregularities. Of course I do not claim that I was right in all my conduct, and I have been willing to take severe punishment in accordance with my confession, but for the present I am following advice. I shall not commit suicide; no one need fear that."

It is believed that the plea of not guilty will be maintained for a time, pending the ascertainment of the actual extent of the default and also pending the more definite and complete location of responsibility. Latest reports set forth that as the result of disclosures at the bank, there is known to be culpability on the part of others than Allen and warrants are said to be in process of preparation. The securities turned over to the receiver by Allen consist largely of mining and industrial stocks, representing questionable investments in enterprises from the Atlantic seaboard to the state of California. Declarations of forgeries are multitudinous, and there seems no longer any doubt that estates have been plundered, but alongside of these disclosures in the declaration of Allen that he was not guilty as to these crimes although he confessed to violation of the federal banking law and to shortage. In this situation the reports predicting additional arrests produce now interest to the case.

While Allen was lying in bed at his home and disclosure after disclosure came out in the examination being made at the bank, Cashier F. E. Hanson, said to have been merely a figurehead cashier, nominally the cashier, but in fact only a teller, while

CHAPTER III.

HE was a skillful architect indeed, who first devised the handbox apartment houses so common now in all parts of New York and must have spent many nights working out how to extricate the maximum of rent revenue from the area on which he had to fit the structure.

If there were any data in Harlem of smaller dimensions than the one of four rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brooks, the most experienced and persistent hunter after a place in which to lodge his family with relative economy and some semblance of comfort would have had the time of his life finding it. And it other data there were more luxuriously fitted up, as easily might have been—in fact, certainly must have been—the case, at least, there was none, whatever its size, that was kept cleaner or neater or in which more effective use of available material had been made than that other which Mrs. Emma Brooks presided as mistress and factotum.

And Mrs. Brooks herself—how she graced it, altogether unconsciously. As the older of two daughters of Stanley Harris, who, while not rich, had been well to do, she had been brought up in the comfort of a good home and had enjoyed the advantage of an education at a private seminary. Her father, whose constant companion she had been and whose sense of democracy in the matter of association she had inherited, had adored her, and when she had given her heart to Joseph Brooks, electing him from among numerous suitors, including James Smith, he gave his consent to their union against his own judgment and in face of the strenuous opposition of his wife, esteeming the girl's happiness superior to all other considerations.

Brooks, who had been in the employ of the Latin-American Steamship company for one year and had been brought into relations with the family by virtue of his selection as secretary to his father, the general manager, had no means whatever of his own, and his salary, then $50 a month, was a desperately small income on which to begin housekeeping for a girl reared as she had been. But her father helped them, and the young couple counted upon his influence to procure the advancement of his son-in-law to a more remunerative post.

Unfortunately for them, however, Mr. Harris had died a few weeks after their wedding, and they found themselves thrown upon their own resources. Mrs. Harris, a selfish, shallow, unfeeling woman with social pretensions, who regarded her daughter's marriage with the young clerk as a misalliance, and Brooks himself with disquiet, left them to shift for themselves and with her other daughter, Beth, who was seven years younger than Emma and shared her mother's views, as she imitated her haughtiness, settled down to the enjoyment of the modest fortune her husband had left her and the indulgence of the ostentatious life she led, but which during Mr. Harris' lifetime she had never been able to gratify to the top of her bent. She did not for this, however, withdraw altogether from association with Emma and Brooks and continued on more or less amicable terms with them. Now and then she condescended to call upon them with both, but her visits, as a rule, were a good deal of a trial to the young couple, for she

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Noah, Ky.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from headaches, nervous prostration, and hemorrhages. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, and I can do all my household and attend to the store and post-office, and feel much younger than I really am. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most successful remedy for all kinds of female troubles, and I feel that I can never praise it enough."—Miss Lizzie Holland, Noah, Ky.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

regarded Brooks' failure to get on in the steamship company as a vindication of her opinion as to his ability and the judiciousness of their marriage and was prone to condone with her daughter, assume an exasperating I-told-you-so attitude and lament what might have been.

During the four years of their married life Brooks' salary had been raised only $20 a month, although in addition to his work as accountant, to which he had been assigned after Mr. Harris' death, that of collector had been thrust upon him. It had been a hard, bitter experience for pretty little Mrs. Brooks, this unaccustomed drudgery of housework, this continuous scouring of greasy pots and pans and washing of dishes, which she loathed; this deprivation of comforts and luxuries that she had known all her life; this privation of many personal things considered indispensable by the dainty woman; this necessity of perpetual right economy, which barely sufficed to make both ends meet. She deprived herself of much needed clothing, of any thing of fancy, that Joe might go properly clad to his office, but she never for that reason descended to storelessness, never "let herself go," as so many women in their own households make the mistake of doing, and never had she allowed one word of complaint, one indication of regret, to escape her. She had married Joe for love, for better or for worse, and resigned herself bravely and cheerfully to the consequences, however hard to bear, hoping for the better times that were so long in coming and encouraging her husband to fight on and win.

Joe, for his part, lacked his wife's grit and energy, and constant disappointment had undermined his fortitude. He loved Emma. He hardly could have done otherwise, though calculation had entered largely into his courting of her. Chivalrously, while the sweet bliss of their early married life held him in its spell, he had done as much of the heavier work of the menage as he could spare her when time and opportunity afforded, but very naturally he had soon tired of this—where the man who does not work by degrees had left as much of it as he could to her, except when his moods of optimism and affectionate solicitude impelled him to go to her assistance. At such times he wanted to do it all.

On the evening following his outburst at the office he was still resentful and "down in the mouth" when he let himself into his little flat, and the smiles of his wife as she raised her forehead to receive his kiss of greeting failed to dispel his gloom.

"You seem out of sorts tonight, dear," she said sollicitously. "Anything wrong at the office?"

"Nothing in particular. I'm tired and hungry after slaving all day in this awful heat, that's all."

"Never mind, supper's all ready, so sit down and tuck in."

"What did you get?"

"Chops and potatoes."

Joe turned up his nose, but took his seat at table and began to eat. He answered his wife's questions in monosyllables. His thoughts, it was plain, were not on his meal or Emma's conversation, and, seeing that he was preoccupied and troubled, she ceased to try to engage his attention.

"I paid the gas bill today," he vouchsafed at length. "Ninety cents more than last month."

"Ninety cents more!" she commented with concern. "I'm sure we didn't use half as much. And we own the butcher four-sixty."

"Every month it costs more to live. I don't know what we are going to do, I'm sure."

"I'm sorry, Jon. Goodness knows I try to be as economical as I can."

"I know, but it's all wrong. It's all wrong that you should be spending your hands with those beastly greasy pans. They weren't meant for such work. I wish we could afford a hired girl."

"So do I, but we can't, so what's the use of wishing? Didn't you get the raise you asked Captain Williams for?" she inquired.

"No."

He hung his head and lapsed into gloomy silence. She dropped the morsel she was raising to her mouth and rose from the table, filled with dismay. Her appetite completely gone, Tears of disappointment followed the realization of what the failure of their plans meant, for neither had doubted that his request would be complied with, and she had built many castles in the air on the strength of it. A few dollars more a week added to her meagrely small income would have meant much to them. But, seeing that her husband sitting there utterly dejected and crushed, her heart went out to him in pity and love, and she moved over to his chair and put her arm consolingly round his neck.

"Never mind, Joe, boy," she urged; "don't look so solemn. We're no worse off than we were before, and you'll win out some day."

She placed her hand under his chin and raised his head to kiss him. He saw that she was smiling at him encouragingly through her tears, but refused to be comforted.

"I made out the payroll today," he said. "Three other men in the office who also asked for a raise last month got it; so did Smith."

"What, Jimmy?" she asked.

"I said Smith. There's only one Smith in the office," he replied somewhat sulkily.

"Well, I'm glad for Jimmy's sake he got what he wanted."

"I think he told Williams to come across with more money or he'd quit."

"How much did he ask for?"

"Eighteen hundred."

"Eighteen hundred? My gracious, isn't that fine?"

"It means that he'll be getting nearly $5,000 a year now. Great for him, isn't it?"

"Yes, indeed it is."

"I saw Jimmy today. Asked him to come to supper. He said he would if he could."

"I wonder why he didn't?"

"His husband did not answer immediately. When he did he burst out savagely:

"Suppose he thought we couldn't afford it. Two don't eat as much as one."

"Why, Joe, how absurd!" she laughed, beginning to gather up the supper plates. "Jimmy knows it's not luck."

"That's the trouble. Jimmy knows—your mother knows—Williams knows—everybody knows, and they're always talking about how you've got to work and slave because you married me and all that sort of stuff."

"Jimmy doesn't."

"Well, he thinks it, and your mother's always rubbing it in, harping on the same old string—that I ain't worthy of you, that it's a shame the way you have to work and slave, that I don't seem to get along at all and that you—"

"Oh, don't mind mother; you know her."

"She never did want us to marry."

"But dear old dad did, and he was the one I wanted to please—after you, Joe, of course. Mother is just a bit peculiar. I'm sure she doesn't understand me much, and I'm equally sure that I don't understand her, so we won't bother about her. Just sweep up a bit, will you, while I wash the dishes? Jimmy may drop in by and by."

Brooks went into the kitchen, donned an apron from force of habit, fastened into him by his wife, ever careful of his clothes, and reappeared with a carpet broom and a dust cloth. He was laboring under excitement, as was manifest by the reckless manner in which he used the broom. Finally, with an expression of determination, he said in a firm voice:

"Emma, you know it will be six months or a year before I get another chance at a raise—unless, of course, I quit and get a job somewhere else. I was thinking that perhaps you're tired and want to call it off."

"Call what off?"

"Why, everything—the whole business. I mean our marriage," he said desperately.

Her eyes opened wide with incredulous astonishment.

"You mean separation?"

"That's exactly what I mean."

"What for—because I'm tired?"

"Something like that."

"What an idea! You must have the blues badly to talk such nonsense as that. Don't you think it would be as well to wait until I complain?"

"You have complained."

"No—at least I can't remember."

"Not in words, but—"

"But what?"

"Look here," he said impatiently. "Don't you suppose I have eyes? Don't you suppose I have feelings? I've seen—I know that you're sick of this drudgery and all the rest—sick of it and sorry. There's Smith with his five thousand—he wanted you first. You could have—"

She interrupted him sharply, her face flushing.

Household Worries

The woman who has the care of children in addition to her household duties frequently finds the drain upon her vitality more than her compensation can stand. She becomes nervous, irritable, passes sleepless nights, has headache, backache and other weaknesses that make life miserable. For such there is nothing that gives such quick relief as Dr. Miles' Relief.

which acts directly upon the nerves, refreshing and strengthening them. "I was in a very weak condition; could not sleep any more; my head ached; my nerves were all in a state of nervous prostration. Had headache, neuralgia, could not sleep. I began taking Dr. Miles' Relief and grew rapidly better. For weak women there is nothing better."

MRS. E. O. GILBERTSON, Belleville, Ill.

The first bottle will benefit you; your druggist will return your money.

Don't Wait Till Night

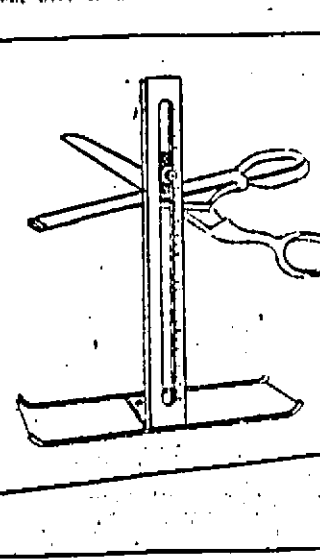

The moment you need help, take a candy Cascaret. Then headaches vanish, dullness disappears. The results are natural, gentle, prompt. No harsher physic does more good, and all harsh physics injure.

NOVEL SKIRT TRIMMER

Scissors Mounted on Cage to Insure Accurate Cutting.

Of the many varieties of skirt trimmers on the market, one of the best known is that designed by an Illinois man. As in other devices of this nature, the primary object of the trimmer is to do its work accurately. This is accomplished by having the scissors mechanically adjusted always at a uniform distance above the bottom of the skirt. In the first place there is a graduated base, in which the bottom of the skirt runs. A sliding frame on one side is an upright with a graduated side and running through it, in this side a horizontal metal bar is mounted, bent over to hold one arm of the scissors.

ADJUSTABLE TO ANY HEIGHT.

The horizontal bar may be moved up and down in the slot and adjusted to any height required. The skirt is then run along just touching the base and the scissors shear off the exact length. This apparatus has been adjusted to which the operator, as can be seen, is but quick and accurate in its operations.

He simply had to make that train—and there was no time to go back for his passes. A happy thought struck him. Didn't he know practically every conductor in that division, and wasn't his face as good as a pass? Sure thing.

So he hastened out into the train shed only to find that the conductor was a total stranger. Assuming an air of confidence that he did not feel, he approached that high authority with an ingratiating grin, told his story, and said he supposed it would be alright if he went along.

The conductor told him he could go wherever he wanted to—mentioning one place in particular—but that no man could travel on his train on the strength of a mess of words like that.

And it was two minutes to train time.

Just as he was about to give up in despair and make a few personal remarks that were commencing to press up against his Adam's apple, the conductor turned on him and said: "Young fellow, I don't know who you are, and I ain't takin' no chances in my official capacity. But I like your face, and I'll take a chance on you personally. I'll lend you enough money to buy a ticket."

"Money!" yelled the young man. "Why I've got enough money to choke a horse. It never occurred to me that I could buy a ticket—I never bought one in all my life!"

Overlooking the obvious is a common failing.

Just how a business man will allow his business to run itself and sit by idly "hoping" it will increase, when on all sides he sees men FORCING their business ahead month after month by advertising, is a question hard to answer. It's obvious that advertising is profitable, otherwise the volume would decrease instead of increase. Everywhere you hear the phrase "It pays to advertise," yet you are overlooking it in your scheme of business.

Just how YOUR business could be BEST advertised may be unknown to you, but it is just such propositions that we are called on to work out every week. We can and will devise for you a plan to advertise your business that will increase your business at a profit to you. Advertising must be made profitable to the advertiser or the relation between publisher and advertiser would soon cease.

We ought to be mutual partners right now.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Jansville Daily Gazette, October 21, 1869.—Accident.—Mr. King, an old gentleman from the town of Union, was thrown from his wagon while coming to the city this morning. He was quite seriously hurt, but able to return this evening.

Jottings.—Clearer visions seem to belong to the officers of the fire companies in this city at the present time than appertain to those who run the machines years ago. It is related of a captain of a certain hook and ladder company that he called on the "boys" and chased the moon which shone dimly through the haze, for a long distance. There is no evidence that he "came up" with it.

The four timbers for the second story of the Court House are going to be placed today.

What pigeons are numerous in this region.

Lake Michigan—a distance of fifty miles—is plainly visible from the highest steeples in the city. A person would have to be inspired to see it.

It is expected that the new organ for the Congregational church will be up by tomorrow night.

Jansville, it is said, will have a Vanity Fair this winter.

My Remedy has actually cured men and women seventy and eighty years of age—some were so decrepit that they could not even dress themselves. To introduce this great remedy I intend to give fifty thousand 50-cent boxes away, and every suffering reader of this paper is cordially invited to write for one. No money is asked for this 50-cent box neither now nor later, and if afterwards more is wanted I will furnish it to sufferers at a low cost. I found this remedy by a fortunate chance while an invalid from rheumatism and since it cured me, I have been a blessing to thousands of other persons. Don't be sceptical, remember the first 50-cent box is absolutely free. This is an internal remedy which goes after the cause of the trouble, and when the cause of rheumatism is removed, have no fear of deformities. Rheumatism in time will affect the heart, so do not trifle with this terrible affliction. Address enclosing this adv. JOHN A. SMITH, 6609 Smith Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Wis., Oct. 21.—The Evansville Historical society has been the recipient of one of the five huge Manitou stones known to exist in Wisconsin and the huge relic of the early Indian days has been placed on the corner of the Eager library lot and later will be dedicated with proper ceremonies.

Tradition among the Indians tells of the worship of these Manitau stones. Manitau means Spirits and the Indian lore tells us that at these stones the spirits of the Gods were supposed to abide. Certainly they were sacred places of worship reserved and their sides carved with devices, evidently prayers.

The Evansville stone was found near Fulton, located at what is supposed to have been the site of Indian mounds of much antiquity. It is five feet high and seven feet in circumference. Its sides show traces of chiselling, although time has obliterated the designs and meaning of the quaint figures.

The early Indians selected certain prominent boulders along the roads or paths of their particular tribe, which stood out prominently, as their Manitau stones. Here they laid their offerings, pinches of tobacco, bits of flint, arrowheads, pots of cereals and other gifts to propitiate the Gods and protect them on their journeys.

There is no doubt that the Evansville stone is one of these sacred stones. Around it were the graves, the mounds either for sacrifice or burial and about its base were found bits of flint, arrow points and broken pottery where offerings had been made. Four others have been located in the state and this one was first discovered by Prof. Stiles of Madison.

Its weight is approximately six tons and it took a heavy traction engine and a large truck to transport it from its original resting-place to Evansville. Several previous attempts had been made which were unsuccessful.

Washington, Oct. 21.—After a period of quiescence that afloat gang of Spanish swindlers, which has for the last 15 years been exploiting credulous people in America, has resumed work. Within the last few days letters have been received at Washington delicately approaching the recipients for funds.

While the scheme is many-sided and the details vary in every case, the basis of the appeal is always the injured damsel in distress, and large sums of money are promised to the confiding American who will put up a small amount of cash to rescue the unfortunate young female.

It is known to the state and post-office departments that a number of credulous Americans have fallen into this trap in the past, so that every effort will be made to break up the gang if it is possible to do so.

ARRESTED AS "BLACK HANDS"
Two Italians Wanted in Various Parts of Country Are Captured.

—Easton, Pa., Oct. 21.—Easton police arrested two Italians wanted in different parts of the country for murder, highway robbery and other "black hand" crimes. The prisoners are Servin Arrigo, 21 years old, who is said to have a number of aliases, and Michael Florinovo, 23 years old. They carried revolvers, knives, masks and other paraphernalia used by burglars. Arrigo, who is suspected of having murdered Joseph Stellanio at Pittsburg, Kan., in March, admits he was at that place when the crime was committed and says he is accused of the murder. Fiorinovo has been identified as the man wanted at Warwick, N. Y., for robbing an Italian of $40. Both men are also said to have connection with the "black hand" organization at Philadelphia. (The subject of the article is not named.)

Dead Woman's Progeny Number 134.
Hammond, Ind., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Barbara Kinsely, aged 90, is dead at Lowell. She was married in 1836 and her progeny consists of seven daughters, four sons, 41 grandchildren, 71 great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren. Relatives claim her record unequalled anywhere.

Illinois Arbor and Bird Day.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—In accordance with the proclamation of Gov. Deneen, issued last March, to-day was observed as the second of this year's arbor and bird days. In Chicago and most of the cities and towns throughout the state there were appropriate exercises in the public schools.

A Selling Campaign Should Be Started Right

—every detail should be given thoughtful consideration and planned before a dollar is invested in the purchase of advertising space. Conscientious advice and assistance should be obtained from people who are capable of thoroughly analyzing your selling problems and who will give personal attention to your particular case. It's only the man in the pilot house who has the outlook and the data to steer the ship. The kind of advertising that makes every dollar spent an investment instead of an expense is the kind that has a perfect selling plan back of it. If your product has merit there is a way to sell it.

If newspaper advertising is what you need you will be glad to work with you. If not, we will tell you so at once.

ADVERTISING DEPT.

Learning Hotel Keeping.
An interesting scheme under the patronage of the Chamber of Commerce of Monteno is afoot for the foundation of a hotel-keeper's school for Frenchmen. It is pointed out that the hotel industry on the Riviera alone represents a capital of £75,000,000 and that most of the hotels belong to Swiss and other foreigners. There is no real reason why Frenchmen should not make excellent hotel-keepers, but hotel-keeping has to be learned, and the idea is to found a college at which young Frenchmen may be trained everything appertaining to the hotel from languages to cooking and hygiene. In Switzerland a number of these schools exist, and they have always been entirely successful.—Paris Correspondent London Express.
